MDOC partnership with NICEBS hosts Thinking for Change ‘Train the Trainers’ session

JACKSON – The Mississippi Department of Corrections (MDOC) is proud to partner with the National Institute of Corrections and Evidence Based Strategists, Inc. to host the Thinking for a Change (T4C) 5.0 Train-the-Trainer program in Jackson.

This nationally recognized cognitive-behavioral program equips correctional professionals with the skills and tools needed to help justice-involved individuals develop critical thinking, social skills, and problem-solving abilities that support long-term success and reduce recidivism.

The MDOC was honored to welcome participants and trainers from across the country as they collaborated, learned, and strengthened their capacity to deliver evidence-based programming that transforms lives and builds safer communities.

A special thank you to NIC and Evidence Based Strategists, Inc. for their partnership, expertise, and commitment to advancing effective correctional practices nationwide.

Together, we are investing in professional development, strengthening reentry efforts, and creating opportunities for positive change.
