

Mississippi State Parole Board Visits MSP Inmates

PARCHMAN – Students and instructors in the Education and Programs Department at the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman last week welcomed the Mississippi State Parole Board Staff, along with Deputy Commissioner Kelley Christopher and Superintendent Frank Caswell, accompanied by Deputy Superintendent Joshua Russell, MSP Deputy Administrator of Education & Programs Bryce Lowe and Education Director Kimberly Meeks.

"Throughout the tour, Parole Board Staff interacted with inmates, asking thoughtful questions about what they are currently studying, the skills they are developing, and the progress they have made," Meeks said. "The classrooms were filled with energy, enthusiasm, and meaningful conversations. Our students proudly shared their educational journeys and future goals, demonstrating the positive impact that education, workforce training, and rehabilitation can have on a person's life. The atmosphere reflected hope, purpose, and a commitment to personal growth."

Meeks said MSP is grateful for the Parole Board's continued support of educational opportunities and second chances.
