Coalition Launches Parole Project at MSP

PARCHMAN – The Mississippi Impact Coalition (MIC) launched the Mississippi Parole Project at Mississippi State Penitentiary (MSP), in partnership with the Mississippi Department of Corrections, as part of the Justice & The Next 250 Campaign.

Chief Superintendent Marc McClure, who could not attend the gathering, thanked the coalition for helping inmates prepare for the possibility of parole.

"We appreciate any help that volunteers provide for them," McClure said. "I know you could be spending your time doing any number of other things, but you've chosen to be here to help them, and that means so much to them and to me. "

Appreciation extends to Superintendent Frank Caswell, MSP Education Director Kimberly Meeks, case manager supervisors, and case managers for making room for the coalition.

"We are grateful for partnerships that promote education, accountability, preparation, successful reentry, and second chances. Thank you, Mississippi Impact Coalition, for coming to Parchman Farms and helping our men prepare for what comes next," Director Meeks said.

“Freedom is not only a door that opens. It is a road that has to be prepared, said MIC Executive Director Danyelle Holmes.
